Shaping Energies, LLC

Client Testimonial

As a retired engineer, I found both the energy audit performed by Shaping Energies, LLC, and the energy conservation work the firm did fascinating to watch. Competence and commitment were clearly evident. It was also obvious that technology for improving the efficiency of old houses (ours is 113 years old) has advanced remarkably in recent years.

The energy conservation work done on the house was competent, meticulous and careful, and required very little attention or effort from us. Cleanup was exemplary. Some areas were cleaner after the work than they had been before.

The work was performed late in the heating season, so I have no experience yet with heating efficiency in winter weather. However, experience in chilly spring weather suggests that the improvements will be better than I expected. In addition, the cellar requires much less dehumidification in hot humid weather than it did.
